

About FARU

The Faculty of Architecture Research Unit (FARU) of the University of Moratuwa, Sri Lanka, serves as an interdisciplinary platform for research and publication. FARU represents five academic Departments within the Faculty of Architecture;

- Department of Architecture
- Department of Town and Country Planning
- Department of Building Economics
- Department of Integrated Design
- Department of Facilities Management

Thus, FARU facilitates dialogue and knowledge exchange among researchers, professionals, academics, and industry practitioners from various allied disciplines. This engagement strengthens research collaborations and fosters innovations that can shape the future of architecture, design, planning, construction and maintenance.

FARU Aim and Scope

The aim of the FARU Journal is to open up a platform to discourse theoretical or empirical studies through discussions, debate across disciplines under the main theme 'Dimensions of Space'. The FARU publications discusses fundamental and applied research on 'space' and different dimensions of it within the discipline of Built Environment, Town and Country Planning, Building Economics, Design and Facilities Management.

FARU interprets 'space' as 'research space' that support a wide range local and international original research on methodological and technical approaches including experimental, observational, monitoring and management studies and, policy analysis related to the environmental performance of the built environment ranging from cities, communities, buildings, building systems, building science, urban physics, and human interaction.

The FARU publication comprises of two types of publications such as FARU conference proceeding and FARU journal. Researchers and practitioners are invited to submit research papers that focus within the scope of FARU publications. The author guidelines for the FARU Conference and the FARU Journal can be found on the website.
